

THE NATIVITY OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST

They made signs, asking his father what he wished him to be called. He asked for a tablet and wrote, "John is his name," and all were amazed.

LUKE 1:62-63

CHANGE OF LIFE

We honor John the Baptist as a prophet sent "to prepare for the Lord a people well-disposed, to help God's people to walk the path of salvation." The prophets were people who, like Isaiah, had God's words placed in their mouths. "They investigated the times," and through their reading of the signs of the times, they were able to declare God's justice.

John the Baptist had the task of preparing the people immediately before the arrival of the messiah. His message was one of repentance, change of life, metanoia. His baptism was a sign of change, of turning things around, in the direction of God.

The lesson of John the Baptist is that the world will receive Jesus Christ when it turns away from its violent and oppressive ways. It must allow the prophets "to turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the rebellious to the wisdom of the just."

In the face of the present-day situation of the world, marked as it is by the grave sin of injustice, we recognize both our responsibility and our inability to overcome it by our own strength. Such a situation urges us to listen with a humble and open heart to the word of God, as he shows us new paths towards action in the cause of justice in the world.

Synod of Bishops, Justice in the World, 1971:29

(Third of the Series)

Our series on the Top 10 Catholic Cities (in no particular order) continues. It is based on culture, history, physical landscape and spirituality and highlights American hubs with a Catholic pulse. Each location, whether it be large or small, east or west, contributes to the richness of Catholic life in America.

Chicago

Chicago's Catholic heart is based in its ethnic diversity.

As the Windy City became industrialized in the mid-19th century, immigrants from Southern and Eastern Europe flocked to Chicago — joining the already present Irish and Germans — to become part of its workforce. Ethnic communities naturally formed, and ethnic Catholic parishes naturally followed. Today, more than 350 Catholic churches remain, many built in impressive European style.

Three are designated basilicas by the Vatican: Our Lady of Sorrows Basilica in East Garfield Park (home to the National Shrines of Our Lady of Sorrows and St. Peregrine, patron saint of those suffering from cancer); Queen of All Saints Basilica in Forest Glen (the location of the signing of the Treaty of Chicago); and the Basilica of St. Hyacinth (with its 62 relics).

Always bustling is St. Peter's in the Loop, with its seven weekday Masses and confessions every day but Sunday. Beautiful artwork can be found at St. Mary of the Angels Church in Bucktown and, for those with hopeless causes to unburden, a small National Shrine of St. Jude is located inside of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church on the South Side.

Also not to be missed is St. Stanislaus Kostka Parish, designated the Sanctuary of the Divine Mercy by Cardinal Francis George in 2007, and its iconic (and quite large) Our Lady of the Sign-Ark of Mercy monstrance.

Paying tribute to the many immigrants who make up the fabric of Chicago, the National Shrine of St. Frances Xavier Cabrini, patron saint of immigrants, also can be found in the Windy City and was renovated in 2012.

The archdiocese is also the home of Mundelein seminary, headed by Father Robert Barron. Chicago also is the hub of the Catholic Press Association, the Catholic Theological Union and the canonization cause for Servant of God Father Augustus Tolton.

It also was the location of the 28th International Eucharistic Congress in 1926 — the first such gathering held in the United States and an event that attracted cardinals and archbishops from around the world.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Church has a long history in the mountains of southern Pennsylvania. Jesuit Father Joseph Bonnechamps is believed to have celebrated the first sacraments in the area as he accompanied French-Canadian explorer Pierre-Joseph Céloron de Blainville along the Ohio and Allegheny rivers in 1749.

Now, Pittsburgh offers visitors a variety of beautiful churches in a diocese with more than 650,000 Catholics. St. Paul Cathedral, located in the Oakland neighborhood, is the diocesan mother church and, according to its website, “stands and shines as a beacon of hope.” For a healthy dose of art, visit St. Nicholas Parish and take in its walls and ceilings covered in murals, including one depicting Croatian peasants in native dress praying the Angelus. Also nearby is St. Paul of the Cross Monastery, the U.S. motherhouse of the Passionist religious order, who have been in Pittsburgh since 1852. The monastery offers a rich history, a peaceful facility and an opportunity for retreat.

If relics are your cup of tea, you won't want to miss St. Anthony's Chapel, which touts the largest public collection of relics in the world. Located on Troy Hill and overlooking the Allegheny River, the chapel contains more than 5,000 relics, including a piece of Jesus' crown of thorns and a portion of St. Joseph's cloak.

The Pittsburgh Oratory of St. Philip Neri, located within walking distance of St. Paul, runs the Ryan Catholic Newman Center for the University of Pittsburgh. It offers perpetual Eucharistic adoration and is active in reaching out to young people on college campuses. Also affiliated with John Henry Newman is the National Institute for Newman Studies, a study and research institute developed to bring Newman's teachings to today's society.

The diocese boasts a long line of prelates with strong ties to the Steel City, including Cardinal Donald Wuerl of Washington, D.C.; Cardinal Sean O'Malley of Boston; and Cardinal Daniel DiNardo of Galveston-Houston.

Also noteworthy is that Pittsburgh is the seat of the Byzantine Catholic Archeparchy of Pittsburgh, which governs all Byzantine Catholic churches in the United States. At the archeparchy's center is St. John the Baptist Byzantine Catholic Cathedral, filled in typical Byzantine style with rich-colored iconography. The archeparchy also operates Sts. Cyril & Methodius Byzantine Catholic Seminary, which prepares priests for all Byzantine Catholic eparchies in North America.

St. Augustine, Fla.

The beautiful coastal town of St. Augustine, Fla., offers a rich Catholic history, in addition to its patron saint-inspired name. According to the National Historic Landmarks program, St. Augustine, founded in 1565 by Spanish settlers, is “the oldest continuously occupied European settlement in the continental United States.” The first Mass was celebrated by Father López de Mendoza Grajales on Sept. 8, 1565, the day the Spanish ship arrived in the New World. A result of that settlement was its oldest parish: now the Cathedral Basilica of St. Augustine. Renovated in 1965-66, the cathedral, with its ornate exposed bell tower, was raised to the dignity of a minor basilica on December 4, 1976.

A natural vacation destination with its cobblestone streets and oceanfront view, St. Augustine also offers a place of spiritual renewal. The Mission of Nombre de Dios, and its accompanying Shrine of Our Lady of La Leche, is located steps from the arterial waterways that lead to the Atlantic Ocean. The mission was established on the land where, according to its website, Father López celebrated the first Mass (an 11-foot statue of the priest stands adjacent to a nearby lagoon).

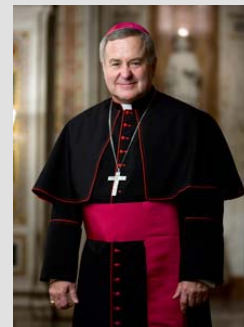

Also part of the mission are Prince of Peace Church and “The Great Cross,” both built to commemorate the mission's (and city's) quadricentennial in 1965. The cross is 208 feet tall, weighs 70 tons and is made of 200 stainless steel panels.

TAKING LEAVE

One of the aspects of being a parish priest—especially an associate pastor—is that we don't stay in one parish for very long. I've been fortunate in that I have been able to be here at Sacred Heart for three full years, which is the normal length of time for an associate. On one hand that is wonderful...I really got to be part of this awesome faith community. On the other hand, it makes saying goodbye that much more difficult.

I am so grateful to this parish for the three years I have been here. When I arrived at Sacred Heart in June 2015, I had just left a religious order that I had been a part of for almost twenty years. I was grieving, perhaps more than I realized at the time. What's more, I came here with only one year of full-time parish experience as a priest...most of those years in religious life, I had taught or done other ministries. So being here at Sacred Heart was an adjustment. But the parishioners, the staff, and the priests and deacons here welcomed me and helped me make that adjustment, and I leave here as a priest of the Archdiocese of Saint Louis who has been mentored beautifully by the people here came here to serve.

There is no way I can summarize in a short article what you have given me, what you have taught me. But if I had to summarize it in a single sentence, it would be this: Even in these days where church attendance is down, there are parishes that are active, vibrant, and Spirit-filled, where people really are excited about their faith, and who love to live that faith together in community. And that describes Sacred Heart in Valley Park, it is a parish that is alive. I have been amazed that at any hour of the day, from early morning to late at night, there are people around doing exciting things. At times I've wondered if this parish ever has a "down" moment...that does not seem to be the case. Even in those early hours past midnight, parishioners can be found on the walking track. This place is amazing.

And it is a parish that is willing to receive priests graciously and with gratitude. When I think of myself, as well as Denny Schaab, Abe Arganiosa, Tom Haley, and Pat Christopher, as well as all the other priests who have been here in recent years, we are as different as snowflakes. In case you haven't realized it yet, I am an introvert. Some of the other priests I've mentioned are off-the-chart extroverts. We all have our own gifts and talents, and we all have our growing edges. But the fact that you have received us with such love speaks volumes about this faith community.

One of the nice things about my new assignment as pastor at Immaculate Conception in Arnold is that it is fifteen minutes south of here, where 141 and 55 intersect. It is not far away, and if there is one thing I have learned about Saint Louis, it is a great big small town where everybody knows everybody and our paths cross constantly. That makes this goodbye a little easier, since I know we will still see each other.

And so, thank you for everything you have been for me these past three years. I hope the ministry I've done here has been helpful for you. I know Father Rosy was in the habit of frequently telling you all that he loved you. I'm not quite that emotive, but it is true. I do love you. Please keep me and Father Tom in your prayers as we transition to new parishes, and know that you are in our prayers as well. God bless you.

THE GOOD NEWS

Not Wanting Anyone to Be Left Out, Teacher Carries 60-Pound Student on Her Back for Camping Trip

CHICAGO, IL - Helma Wardenaar was heartbroken to hear that her 10-year-old student, Maggie Vasquez, was unable to go on the class’s 3-day camping trip to Camp Sullivan in Oak Forest.

Since Maggie has cerebral palsy, her walker would be unable to maneuver the rough terrain of the wilderness.

Instead of allowing her student to miss out, however, Wardenaar simply offered to carry the 60-pound student on her back. The educator from The Academy for Global Citizenship in Chicago, Illinois had debated the merits of simply renting a pony for Maggie, but since Wardenaar exercises regularly, she decided to buy a special $300 harness that would allow her to shoulder the youngster for the trip.

Wardenaar said, “When I showed it to Maggie her eyes became really big! She was like, ‘Ms. Helma! You found something?’ I showed it to her in the classroom so everybody saw and they were like, ‘Yay! Maggie can do this!’”

In addition to carrying Maggie for the 45-minute hike to the campsite, Wardenaar carried her student for 2 hours every day so they could explore the forest and do nature activities with the class.

While this may be an extraordinary act of kindness for some, Wardenaar says that it is simply part of her dedication to her students.

“We didn’t think twice about doing this for Maggie. It’s ingrained in the culture of our school to help each other and to help make the world a better place.”

THIS WEEK’S READINGS

Isaiah 49:1-6

INNER DOUBTS

Everyone who works hard has moments of wondering, “Was it worth it?” It’s a frightening question to face. We put a lot of effort into school, work, family, and interests. They all demand a lot of time, attention, and detail. Sometimes the rewards are obvious, but other times they are not. At some point a hard worker will wonder, “Was it worth it?”

Even John the Baptist faced that question. After preaching, baptizing, gathering disciples, announcing Jesus, and baptizing him at the Jordan, John continued his ministry—until he was arrested. Then he had doubts. He sent two of his disciples to ask Jesus if he really was the Messiah. In prison, cut off from his work and the people who loved him, John wondered, “Was it worth it?”

Long before this, the prophet Isaiah felt the same way. “The Lord called me from birth,” he says. “He made of me a sharp-edged sword and concealed me in the shadow of his arm.” Isaiah heard God say, “You are my servant,” but still the doubts came. “I thought I had toiled in vain, and for nothing, uselessly, spent my strength.”

Now, both Isaiah and John the Baptist are remembered as tremendous prophets in religious history, but that was not always clear to them at the time.

We will have our doubts, but if we are servants of God, we will be a light to the nations.
